Canada's Digital Learning Leaders Converge on Niagara Falls

CONNECT 2015 - Canada's Largest Education Technology Conference

May 5-8

NIAGARA FALLS, Ontario, Wednesday, April 29, 2015 — The District School Board of Niagara, Brock University's Faculty of Education and MindShare Learning forge an innovative partnership to present Canada's National K-12 and postsecondary learning and technology conference, CONNECT 2015, on May 5-8 at the Scotiabank Convention Centre in iconic Niagara Falls, Ontario.

"CONNECT 2015 gives Canadian EdTech leaders and educators the unique opportunity to access world renowned speakers and presenters in ICT without having to leave Canada. We recognize that the digital revolution is upon us and we are embracing it in Niagara through CONNECT and our innovative community programs," says Dino Miele, Chief Information Officer at DSBN / CONNECT 2015 Conference Chair.

CONNECT 2015 -- Canada's largest education technology conference, is a three-day national conference which connects over 2,000 education and technical support leaders representing 15 countries, 180 presentations, 150 plus exhibitors and sponsors. The goal is to share best practices while infusing education technology in an increasing global 21st century digital economy.

This year CONNECT features keynotes from the likes of global education thought leader, Eric Sheneringer and celebrity tech guru, Marc Saltzman. "I'm thrilled to be presenting at such an esteemed conference as CONNECT. I am looking forward to talking about the latest in tech tools and trends to help students, educators and leaders," says Marc Saltzman, one of North America's most recognizable and trusted tech experts.

About CONNECT

The CONNECT conference concept was inspired by the desire to provide a forum for cross-provincial collaboration between k-12, postsecondary and industry leaders. Now, in its sixth year, the mission is to connect all sectors in order to help raise the standards of 21st century teaching, training and learning in education and the workplace.
